ITALY AFLAME WITH WAR SPIRIT

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Rome, May 20.—Parliament reconvened today with Rome aflame for war with Austria. As the senators and deputies gathered great crowds marched through the streets crying "Down with Austria." The Italian flag was displayed everywhere. Cheers for the king, Premier Salandra and the army were mingled with execrations for Austria and Germany.

Ten thousand troops took up stations in the city at dawn. The parliament buildings were surrounded by soldiers with fixed bayonets and large forces of cavalry were held near by. The guards about the Austrian and German embassies were doubled. Every precaution was taken to prevent disorder.

Premier Salandra held an early conference with King Emmanuel. The premier was cheered as he arrived at and left the Quirinal. It is understood that Salandra acquiesced in the kind with the decision of the cabinet that Austria's latest concessions were insufficient and also gave him in detail measures adopted by the cabinet for rupturing diplomatic relations with Austria and the war that is expected to follow.

All disinterested diplomats here are watching with deepest interest the methods of Foreign Minister Sonnino for breaking with Austria and Germany. Both these countries have done their utmost to avoid giving cause for a break. It is reported that Prince von Buelow and Baron von Macchio have been instructed by their respective governments not to ask for their passports, apparently planning to throw full responsibility upon Italy.

Even in official Italian circles it is admitted that Sonnino's diplomacy will be put to a hard test.

Members of the diplomatic corps were fully informed yesterday of the decision reached by the cabinet. The number of visits paid by various envoys to Signor Sonnino broke all records. The American ambassador, Thomas Nelson Page, called at the foreign office in the afternoon. He was followed by the Spanish ambassador, by the Bavarian and Portuguese ministers, by Counselor von Hindenburg of the German embassy, by Counselor Poggenpohl of the Russian embassy and by the secretary of the Austrian embassy.

The question of providing protection for Italian subjects in Austria, Germany and Turkey is apparently causing the government some anxiety. The visits of Ambassador Page and the Spanish envoy to Sonnino are believed to have been made in connection with plans for protecting Italian interests.

After the visits of the diplomats another cabinet meeting was held in the evening. It was at this session that Austria's latest proposals are said to have been rejected. He said to have been rejected.

A though efforts were made to keep secret the contents of the Green Book which the government had prepared for parliament to set forth negotiations with Austria, practically all its contents were known when parliament met.

The Green Book states that Italy remained faithful to the triple alliance pact, but declared that in the summer of 1914 Austria, without accord with Italy, without giving the latter country the slightest information and without heeding Italy's advice of moderation, sent an ultimatum to Serbia that caused the present war.

"Thus Austria," the Green Book asserts, "broke the Balkan statu quo, creating a situation profitable only to herself. Notwithstanding this, Italy for several months endeavored to resume friendly relations with Austria, but the efforts failed."

The Green Book opens with Baron Sonnino's telegram dated December 5, inviting the Duke d'Avarna, Italian ambassador to Austria, to inform Count Berchtold that the Austrian advance into Serbia was covered by article seven of the Triple Alliance pact. Austria's reply to these representations was negative.

On December 20, Austria began changing her government, Baron Burian succeeding Count Berchtold, the Austrian foreign minister and premier.

Two months later on February 22 the d'Avarna telegraphed to Rome: "It is useless to deal with the Austrian foreign office as Austria is not inclined to concede."

It was not until March 9 that the Burian ministry consented to negotiate with Italy relative to compensation, continues the "Green Book."

Baron Sonnino then named Italy's terms. The reply was that Austria was opposed to the immediate occupation of the territory in question.

Prince von Buelow the German ambassador to Italy, then became a leading factor in the negotiations, giving Italy assurances on March 20 that Germany would guarantee the execution of an agreement at the end of the war.

As a result of the turn of affairs Baron Sonnino agreed to reopen the negotiations, providing that Baron Burian made concrete offers to Italy. Offers were made to which Baron Burian became very insistent that Italy should subscribe at once. On March 25, the Duke d'Avarna, in reporting to the Italian foreign office, said that the Austrian government was "keeping him very busy."

The chief features of the first conditions imposed upon Italy were the following:

1.—Benevolent, economical and political neutrality during the war.
2.—Freedom of action for Austria in the Balkans.

3.—Italy to renounce any further compensation.

4.—Continuation of the Austro-Italian accord concerning Albania.

On April 2 Baron Burian made to Italy the offer of a grant of territory in the Lake Garda district as far as Lavis.

Counter proposals were made on April 8 by Italy. The Italian government having in the meantime, studied closely the offers of Austria.

In these counter proposals, Baron Sonnino demanded the cession of Trent and the establishments of the boundaries that had existed in 1811, together with the following other grants:

1.—Concessions in Friuli from Malborghetto to Nabsina.
2.—Trieste with Istria and Pizan to constitute an independent state.
3.—Italian control of the Curzolari islands.

4.—Italy to have a free hand in Albania.

5.—The ratification of Italy's occupation of Valona, Albania. Between April 2 and April 13 reports that Austria and Russia might conclude a separate peace reached Baron Sonnino, who then began to insist upon an immediate reply from Austria.

Vienna's reply to the insistent messages of Baron Sonnino was a flat refusal of all Italian demands except the cession of a small zone in Trent and no immediate occupation of that district by Italy.

In April, when it began to look as though diplomacy had failed, negotiations were broken off and the Triple Alliance pact, so far as Italy was concerned, was abrogated.

The contention underlying the "Green Book" is that Italy tried throughout to avoid war.

The houses of parliament were called to order promptly at 2 o'clock. The troops which had been stationed in all the streets adjacent to parliament building, allowed none to approach save members and those bearing special passes. Just before the chamber of deputies went into session, some of the "interventionist" members appeared at the windows and were widely cheered by the crowds.

The utmost caution was exercised in distributing tickets of admission in order to prevent any outbreaks in the spectators' galleries. Among the spectators was Signor Battisti, a former representative of Trent in the Austrian parliament, who is now an exile, having been sentenced to death in Austria for treason.

Another notable spectator was Signor Piccolo, a representative of Trieste in the Austrian parliament. Sitting in the most conspicuous position, surrounded by leaders of the war party was Gabriele d'Annunzio, the fire-brand poet, who came back to Italy after a long voluntary exile to urge his country to go to war against Austria. With him was Prof. Ferrero, the famous writer. Hundreds of former members of the chamber of deputies clamored for entrance and most of them had been granted tickets of admission.

The only conspicuous absentee in the chamber was Signor Giolitti, leader of the anti-war party, and former premier of Italy, who has openly been accused of treason for trying to prevent Italy from going to war against her former ally.

A notable feature of the occasion was the pro-war attitude of Signor Labriola and Signor de Felice, two Socialist members of the chamber, who boasted that during the recent stormy days, they have converted many influential Socialists to the "interventionist" cause.

Copies of telegrams from the mayors of towns on the Austrian frontier, declaring that the Italian people on the border were willing to make any sacrifices for the unification of the country were distributed among the members. These had been received by Premier Salandra before parliament convened. At the same time word was received from many cities throughout northern Italy that "peace demonstrations" had resulted in failure, the pacifists being put to flight by the pro-war adherents."

STEPS AND WALKS.
Contract Awarded for Extra Work at New High School.

A special meeting of the board of education was held Wednesday afternoon at its office in the new high school, at which time the board authorized the construction of eight concrete steps and 546 square feet of concrete sidewalk, made necessary at this time by reason of the fact that there was not any established grade at the side entrances to the building when the contract for construction the side approaches was awarded last November.

Five steps are necessary on one side of the building and three steps on the opposite side, the steps to connect the present steps with the side approaches. The steps will be eight feet long, with concrete cheek pieces at each end. The concrete sidewalk will extend from the approaches to the entrance used by pupils using bicycles in coming to school and who store their bicycles in the basement, such walk to be protected on one side by iron-pipe railing in standards.

Architect Arthur C. Longyear said he had made an estimate of the cost and had then asked Contractor Henry McNamee, who is doing the grading and sodding, to submit a bid. Mr. McNamee had asked $236 for the extra work, which was $9 less than the architect's estimate. On motion of Trustee Bernstein the contract was awarded to Mr. McNamee.

All the members of the board were present except Trustees Atkins, Kearney and Washburn.

MARY JORDAN FOUND IN POUGHKEEPSIE

Mary Jordan, the seventeen year old daughter of John Jordan of Ashokan, who has been missing from her home since Sunday, April 18, was located on Wednesday evening by Sheriff Shultis and Under Sheriff Hornbeck at the home of George Goodchild, No. 156 Winnikee street, Poughkeepsie, where she has been boarding for the past three weeks while the countryside has been scoured by the authorities searching for her. Mary was brought back to Kingston and spent the night at the home of Sheriff Shultis and was restored to her father today. Martin Eckert of Tongone, who is accused of abducting the girl, is held in the county jail and the grand jury when in session is investigating the charge against Eckert.

The Jordan girl left her home in Ashokan on Sunday afternoon, April 18, with several girl chums saying she was going to Sunday school. Instead she boarded the Ulster & Delaware train and came to Kingston, where she got off on the depot on the Strand and was met by a man. From that point she suddenly dropped out of sight until she was located Wednesday evening.

After leaving Kingston the girl's movements were traced by the authorities who learned that a man answering the description of Eckert and Mary spent about ten days across the river at Rhinebeck, where they stopped under the name of "Andrew Martin" and "Mary Martin," says.

They were father and daughter. From there all trace of the girl was lost. Wednesday evening while Seth Jocelyn was in charge of the sheriff's office he received a telephone message saying that a girl answering Mary's description was boarding at the Goodchild home in Poughkeepsie. Mr. Jocelyn immediately notified Sheriff Shultis, who with Under Sheriff Hornbeck motored to Highland and crossed to Poughkeepsie in a small boat and went to police headquarters. The Poughkeepsie police ordered out the motor patrol and a sergeant accompanied the local officers to the Goodchild home, where they awakened the family.

Mr. Goodchild came down stairs and admitted the officers and when he learned of their errand he went up stairs and awakened "Mary Martin" and told her to dress. After she was dressed she came down stairs and Mr. Hornbeck said, "Well, Mary, are you ready to go home?" She looked at him a second and replied "I certainly am."

Before leaving Poughkeepsie Mary said that the man who brought her there was Martin Eckert and that he had secured board for her at the Goodchild home, telling the Goodchilds that the girl was his daughter. Eckert gave the name of "Andrew Martin" and said the girl's name was "Mary Martin."

After Mary had been at the Goodchild home a short time Mr. Goodchild read an article telling of the disappearance of the Jordan girl and his suspicions were aroused as he believed that "Mary Martin" was a description. To make sure he wrote to Mrs. Lucas Palen at West Shokan, stating that the "Martin" girl had been at his house for some time and giving her description. This led to the information being telephoned to the sheriff's office about 9 o'clock Wednesday evening.

As the district attorney's office had offered a reward of $50 for any information regarding the location of the girl it is quite likely that the reward will be paid to Mr. Goodchild.

From investigations made the authorities suspected Martin Eckert of being the man with whom Mary had disappeared and on Tuesday, May 4, Eckert was arrested on a charge of attempting to commit burglary in the second degree. The complaint against Eckert was filed by Mr. Jordan, the girl's father, who claimed that he had caught Eckert in an attempt to force an entrance on the night of March 23 last in the bedroom of his daughter, Mary. Eckert was brought to the county jail, where he has been held pending an investigation of the more serious charge of abduction. It is understood that the grand jury now in session is investigating the location of the girl and it is quite likely that Mary Jordan will be called as a witness before that body today.

A Great Truth.
This seems to be a great truth, in any exile or chaos whatsoever, that sorrow was not given us for sorrow's sake, but always and infallibly as a lesson for us from which we are to learn somewhat; and which, the somewhat once learned, ceases to be sorrow.—Thomas Carlyle.

SAMUEL UNTERMYER

THE LIE IS PASSED AT RIGGS BANK CASE HEARING.

Washington, May 20.—The suit of the Riggs National Bank against certain of the administration officials came up for argument in the supreme court of the District of Columbia Tuesday with bitter wrangle between counsel. The argument was mostly the comment of the bank's counsel on the answer of John Skelton Williams, comptroller of the currency, to the bank's bill of complaint.

So bitter did the controversy finally become that Judge McCoy warned them that it must stop.

"It is not for the court," said the judge, "to determine how bad blood came to be injected into this case, but this court does not intend to make a laboratory for the analyzing of bad blood. The case will proceed as between gentlemen and lawyers."

THE OLD GUARD IS ORGANIZED

A preliminary meeting for the purpose of organizing an association of former National Guardsmen of Kingston and vicinity, to be known as The Old Guard Association of Kingston, was held at the armory Wednesday evening. The meeting was attended by Major George Chandler, former captain of Company M; Captains Frank L. Meagher, John G. Van Etten, Thaddeus Taylor, A. W. Thompson, Benjamin J. Hornbeck, Everett Fowler, Lieutenants Joseph M. Fowler, Henry R. DeWitt, J. Allan Wood and Sergeant William G. Merritt.

The meeting was called to order by Captain Meagher, who was elected chairman, and William G. Merritt was elected secretary. The object of the meeting was stated by Captain Meagher who said it was desired to form an organization of all those who had served in the National Guard and had been honorably discharged. Those eligible to membership included former members of the Old Twentieth Battalion, Company B, the Fourteenth Separate Company, One Hundred and Fourteenth Separate Company and Company M.

The plan was heartily approved by those present and it was decided that the organization should be known as The Old Guard Association of Kingston. A committee to draft by-laws was appointed, such committee consisting of Captain A. W. Thompson, Lieutenant Joseph M. Fowler and Lieutenant Henry R. DeWitt. The report of the committee will be presented at the next meeting of the association.

It is expected that the membership of the new association will be large as there are between 400 and 600 former guardsmen residing in Kingston and vicinity many of whom expressed enthusiastic approval of the plan. Later a parade will be held which is expected to be one of the largest and most impressive held here in a long time.

Stocking Trout Streams.
This week the Ulster County Fish and Game Protective Association has received shipments of 60,000 trout which have been placed in the streams of the county. At Big Indian the association planted 10,000 trout in the streams; at Pine Hill, 10,000 trout; at Slide Mountain, 20,000 trout; and in the Woodland Valley, 20,000 trout. Friday another shipment of 20,000 trout is expected which will be planted in the streams near Lanesville. The association this season asked the government for 200,000 trout and has received practically all of that number within the past few weeks.

Squeezed Between Cars.
Augustus H. Burgher is confined to his home, No. 257 West Chestnut street, from injuries received while at work coupling cars at Montgomery on Wednesday afternoon. Burgher is employed on the Wallkill Valley railroad and while at work between two cars adjusting the safety chain he was badly squeezed. He was brought to Kingston and conveyed to his home and Dr. Frank Keator summoned who attended to his injuries. Mr. Burgher sustained a fracture of the right collarbone and was severely bruised about the shoulders and chest.

Runaway Boys at Saugerties.
Saugerties, May 20.—Three boys who had escaped from the Berkshire Industrial Farm at Canaan, N. Y., were found by Officer Ricketson at 5 o'clock this morning sleeping in the station and were taken in charge and the proper authorities notified. The boys were Byron Oliver of 33 Kingsley street, Buffalo, Thomas Kennedy of 885 Second street, New York, and Howard King of 547 Eagle street, Buffalo. Oliver and Kennedy are 14 years of age and King is 13. The boys say they left the farm shortly after noon on Tuesday because they had to work too hard. Six other boys left at the same time and went toward Connecticut. The trio caught here spent Tuesday night in Albany and Wednesday made their way here. In Albany one of them earned a nickel carrying a valise and another "swiped" a bottle of milk which was all the money and food they had. King says he ran away three weeks ago and got to Hartford where he was caught and sent back.

SPY KUEPFERLE HANGS HIMSELF
London, May 20.—Anton Kuepfeler, the alleged German spy, who was charged with communicating naval and military secrets to England's enemies, committed suicide in his cell in Brixton jail by hanging early today, thus bringing his trial to a tragic and sudden close. The body was found when a warden entered Kuepfeler's cell to deliver his breakfast.

Kuepfeler gave no intimation of his plan to end his life but seemed cheerful and satisfied with the course of his trial at Old Bailey court. His death may have some bearing upon the cases of two other men who were arrested with him in February and who are in prison, awaiting separate trials. They are Herr Muller and Herr Hahn, both Germans.

The Kuepfeler trial began Tuesday and the hearings have been held in secret. The prisoner who claimed to be a citizen of the U. S. and a resident of Brooklyn, was accused of writing letters with invisible ink, giving the location of British warships and dates of the departure of British troops for the front. He pleaded not guilty and made elaborate arrangements to prove his innocence by retaining excellent legal talent.

TRIAL TERM ADJOURNS.
Beaverkill Stream Case Finished and Nothing Else to be Tried.

The May term of supreme court, Judge Alden Chester presiding, which convened on May 3, was brought to a close this morning when all of the jurors were discharged for the term. No further cases will be tried but court will not adjourn for the term until the report of the grand jury is received. The grand jury was in session today and is expected to report on Friday. It is likely, however, that Judge Chester will not remain to hear the report of the grand jury but will arrange with Judge Hasbrouck to receive the report of that body.

The term while it has not lasted quite three weeks has been a busy one and Judge Chester has disposed of thirty cases either by trial, settlement or dismissal.

In order to wind up the trial of the action brought by the Beaverkill Stream Club to secure a permanent injunction to prevent the Arthur Leighton Company from floating wood or logs on the four mile stretch of the Beaverkill through the club property in the town of Hardenbergh, Judge Chester held a night session of court on Wednesday evening. The case which was taken up on Friday of last week was finally concluded at this morning's session of court. Both sides will submit briefs to the court by June 15 and decision was reserved. The Leighton Company on Wednesday afternoon called as witnesses Jay Davidson, Ralph Roosa, Ebbitt Davidson, John D. Davidson, John D. Broughton, Lawrence McGrath and Frank Hinman. At the evening session which lasted until 9:30 the Beaverkill Club called in rebuttal Joshua M. Kelly, Emmet Barnhart, Israel Barnhart and Frederick Moore. Mr. Moore is secretary of the club.

At the close of the injunction case which was tried without a jury it was expected to take up the trial of the action brought by the state excise department against Vincent Quinn of Esopus to recover $500 on a liquor tax bond for an alleged violation of the liquor tax law. This case was tried once before but the jury disagreed. James J. Nolan appeared in behalf of the excise department this morning and Ex-Mayor William D. Brinnier for Mr. Quinn. Mr. Brinnier stated that a material witness for the defense was unable to be present owing to illness and the case was put over to the October term of supreme court.

The Powell is Here.
The steamer Mary Powell returned to her berth at the Cornell dock on Wednesday evening at 9 o'clock after having been on drydock at Hoboken since Monday. The boat will leave here Friday afternoon for Newburgh to bring up an excursion on its way to Albany, stopping at Poughkeepsie and Kingston Point en route. The boat will land at the Point at 8 a. m. While lying here the Powell will have its cleaning and painting completed for Mr. Quinn. Mr. Brinnier stated that the Powell will leave her Rondout dock at 7 o'clock on an excursion to New York.

MAN WITH THE PUNCH HERE ON MONDAY
The Chamber of Commerce has arranged for a business men's meeting at the Eagle Hotel on Monday evening at 6:30 o'clock, when employers and employees alike, besides any one interested will be welcomed. This will be essentially a business men's meeting and the feature will be a thirty minute address on "Making Good in Business," by Frank Jewer Raymond, industrial manager of the National Retail Dry Goods Association. Mr. Raymond will not confine his talk to any particular branch of business, however. He is known as "The Man With the Punch," and has spoken before some of the largest assemblages of retail merchants in the country. In every city where he has appeared the newspapers say his talk is an inspiration. The tickets for supper will be fifty cents.

Fun At Grange Dance.
The Lake Katrine Grangers are going to pass up a dry way of having a jolly good time on Friday night in connection and between the dances, at the Grange Hall at Katrine, when a novel auction sale will be held. The celebrated auctioneer, John Dederick will be in charge and the articles which will be sold will be merchandise donated by the Kingston and Katrine merchants and the Grangers, and will range all the way from a can of beans to trimmed hats, etc. Refreshments will be served in the spacious dining room, and a fine orchestra will play for dancing. To accommodate the Kingston people, a stage will leave Diehl's, corner of Elmendorf street and Broadway, at 4:45 o'clock and the Uptown Post Office at 8 o'clock.

Contracts for Warren Block.
The contracts for the alteration of the old Bray property on Fair street, which will be known as the Warren building in the future, have been let. The mason work has been awarded to the Charles J. Michaud Company, the carpentry work to T. I. Rifenburg & Son, and the plumbing contract to Thomas J. Cusack. The work of alteration was started this morning. The plans for the new building were prepared by Gerard W. Betz, the architect, and a view of the building as it will look and a description of the work was given in full in Wednesday's Freeman.

Fire Station Improvement.
Homer Burger this morning began excavating in front of the central fire station to lay a new concrete sidewalk there. Work was begun at the corner of Jansen avenue and for the present the middle entrance on the front will be used for the fire truck. A number of men are employed to complete the work will be rushed to the work. It is expected that the work will be completed within a week.

Twenty Days in Jail.

Real Temperance

THE conquest of our appetite, says an eminent writer, can only be accomplished by a substitute for strong drink, and pure three-per-cent-alcohol beverages like

THÜRINGER HOFBRÄU
OR THE INVIGORATING
OLD STOCK LAGER

will duplicate the strong drink evil if used but not abused. Any legislation that seeks to curb our appetite is of doubtful utility. While the question of alcohol is of foremost significance, there is an abundance of evidence to prove that lager beer will eradicate the liquor evil. Therefore, drink beer of 3 per cent alcohol and 97 per cent food value and you'll be nearing a natural temperance standard not to be reached under any form of prohibition legislation.

K. A. WHITEWASHED BY ULSTER NINE

Ulster whitewashed her ancient rival, K. A., Wednesday and smeared it on pretty well at that while they were laying in a stock of 12 runs. This kalsomine stunt had not yet been performed upon either local high school team by his rival, as far as dope can be garnered.

To explain this one-sided affair let's first gaze at the bigger part of the score. McAuliffe pitched a good game but the rotten holding of his team mates seemed to put a blanket on his twirling. He ran even with Culliton in the striking-out race, fanning twelve batters. He only walked one. Once in a while his curves went the wrong way and as a result three batters were hit. The Tigers could garner only five clean bingles and after studying the score card it is found that they earned only two of the twelve runs. Whenever a fielding error did land an Ulster man on first he was sure to take advantage of it. They burned the paths for a total of 13 stolen bases, only one base runner being caught. This base running and timely errors by K. A. explains the 12 point score. Three errors, two hits and a wild pitch gave Ulster a lead of six runs in the first frame and they added to it when they felt so inclined. After the fifth inning they were not inclined in that direction because McAuliffe had got his stride.

To account for the 6 part of the tally we'll say that Culliton was feeling mighty good and he let his feelings crop out. As stated before, he fanned 12. Kingston hit safely only twice and those hits were not outside the limits of the infield. One was a hunt and the other a hot one to Culliton which was fanned down as a hit. But four K. A. men landed on first and of these only two reached second. None went any farther. Luck favored Ulster in the second, when Cook's smash over the left field fence turned out to be a foul.

Culliton was encouraged by brilliant fielding on the part of his charges. Kiernan ably handled the only two swats which were hit to the outfield and Pebleman and Downer made good catches in the infield.

The score by innings:
First Inning.
Silverman led off with a long fly to Kiernan. Wheeler and Johnson both failed to make connections and it was Ulster's turn next.

In this stanza the little tally marks went down pretty fast. Silverman muffed Terwilliger's grounder and "T" stole second. Kiernan singled to left, Terwilliger reaching the third post. After Kiernan's had stolen second and everything was in readiness Downer yielded his usual timely hit, this time through short. He stole second. Silverman muffed Hallinan's fly and the runner was safe. Pebleman forced Downer out at third when he rolled one to Johnson. A wild pitch promoted Hallinan and Pebleman. Joyce grounded to Johnson, whose throw home was not quick enough to catch Pebleman. Joyce being safe. With Hallinan on third Joyce stole second. Peyer cleaned up with a long fly to center, which Relyea handled but dropped when he tripped upon the turf. Peyer pursued Hallinan and Joyce home. Osterhout reckoned that the base lines had been worn down enough so he fanned out to McAuliffe. Culliton was too anxious to wet the little piece of leather and fanned.

Second Inning.
After Cook had fouled over the fence he drove one to Downer, who threw to Terwilliger. Palsi's hot one to Culliton was good for a single. Relyea and Relyea fanned. McAuliffe fanned Terwilliger but hit Kiernan. After Downer had fanned Hallinan singled to left and Kiernan was put out while trying to reach third.

Third Inning.
Pebleman speared McAuliffe's fly. Wilson grounded out to Culliton. Silverman enjoyed three swats. Pebleman was a victim of McAuliffe's wildness, one of the twisters tickling him in the ribs. He stole second O. K. but was caught stealing the next bag. Joyce fanned. Peyer arrived at first through McAuliffe's error and stole second. Osterhout's roller went to McAuliffe. In this inning the K. A. team went through a shake up. Wheeler moved from second to catcher. Relyea came in from center and hovered around first. Cook played second. Ougheltree tended the center garden.

Fourth Inning.
Wheeler beat out a bunt along the third base line and stole second. Culliton walked Cook after Johnson had fanned. Just as Wheeler and Cook were trying a double steal, Palsi and he tagged Cook running past him. Four more for U. A. in this inning.

Johnson missed Culliton's grounder and Cull stole second. Both Culliton and Terwilliger were safe when the latter hit to the infield. Culliton resting on third. Terwilliger stole second. Kiernan brought them home with a single to center. He went to second on the throw home and to third on a passed ball. Downer fanned again. Silverman missed Hallinan's fly and while the K. A. team was asleep, Hal stole second and third and came home on Wheeler's wild throw to third. Pebleman grounded out to Silverman. Joyce struck out.

Fifth Inning.
Pebleman was on the receiving end of Relyea's fly. Peyer on the receiving end of Relyea's strike out, and also of McAuliffe's foul fly. Ulster finished their day's work in this inning. Peyer was walked. He stole second and moved to third when Osterhout's grounder was missed by Cook, both runners being safe. He stole second and both crossed the plate on Culliton's swat to right. Two passed balls shoved Culliton to third. Terwilliger and Kiernan fanned the breeze. Downer was hit by a pitched ball and stole second. Hallinan could not score the two runners so he fanned out to Cook.

Sixth Inning.
Ougheltree was not yet acquainted with Culliton so he fanned. Downer caught Silverman's fly. Pebleman fanned Wheeler's grounder. Pebleman fanned. Joyce fled out to Cook. Silverman muffed Peyer's grounder, but Peyer was nipped while stealing second.

Seventh Inning.
Downer, in booting Johnson's grounder, made Ulster's only error. Cook expected to clean up with a long hit but Kiernan was right in the way. Palsi forced Johnson at second. He stole second. Relyea grounded out to Culliton.

Culliton rolled an easy one to Silverman. Mone's fanned. Relyea nipped Terwilliger's foul fly.

Eighth Inning.
Relyea fanned, and after McAuliffe had grounded out to Pebleman, Ougheltree repeated Relyea's stunt. McAuliffe applied the rigid stuff and his hooks baffled Kiernan and Downer into strike outs. Silverman caught Hallinan's fly.

Ninth Inning.
Culliton annexed two additional strikeouts by fanning Silverman and Wheeler. Johnson fled out to Hallinan.

DIRTY GYPSIES VISIT SAUGERTIES

Sixty-five Children in the Outfit Which Was Driven Out of Town After Restoring Money Stolen—Hustled Through This City by the Police.

Saugerties, May 20.—Last night about 5 o'clock a band of the filthiest Gypsies ever seen in this village arrived and encamped along West Bridge street. They had eight wagons and 30 horses and in the band were 12 men, 10 women and 65 children. (This is not an exaggeration or a misprint.) As soon as camp was made the women made a descent on the village for the purpose of begging and telling fortunes. Four of them went to the residence of Dr. Luther Emerick on Partition street, where one of them pretended to be sick and got the doctor to examine her throat and prescribe for her. She then told him she had no money but would tell his fortune, and proceeded to do so, greatly to the annoyance of the doctor. Of course after she had gone and the doctor began to be suspicious, he discovered that the seeress had picked his pocket of $20. While the fortune teller was at work the three other Gypsies had been endeavoring to coax the doctor's daughter to go with them.

Dr. Emerick notified Officer Ricketson, who went with him to the camp where the doctor was able to positively identify the woman by the enormous amount of gold filling in her teeth and she was arrested and placed in the lockup.

In the meantime two other Gypsy women had stolen $4 from a man in Kerley's saloon in the same way.

These were also arrested and locked up.

This morning the whole gang came to the village and announced that they would not leave until the women were restored to them. As there was not room to lock them all up, the only thing seemed to be to get them to move on and as nobody cared to prosecute if the money was returned, the gang raised $25 which they paid to Officer Ricketson, the women were released and the tribe left town, going by way of the South Side, where the boys helped them along by stoning them liberally.

The same gang went through town this morning with a police escort. The police had been notified of their activities in Coxsackie and Saugerties and welcomed the Gypsies to our fair city. The police patrol with several officers were the reception committee and the visitors were requested to keep moving and not gum up the roadway with their dirty outfit. Eight rigs were escorted to the city line where the leader inquired the direction for Newburgh and was headed toward Eddyville when last seen.

Shaving a Man a Minute.

Many years ago there were shaving competitions at the old Royal aquarium, when the pick of London's Figaros fought for the blue ribbon of the profession, attended with all the paraphernalia of sport—judges, timekeepers, referees and a doctor and a nurse in attendance. A champion emerged from the Homeric struggle—one Teddy Weeks, whose name has been immortalized in song. He shaved a man a minute for an hour with an ordinary razor without drawing blood.—London Spectator.

Disease to Exterminate Grasshoppers.

To exterminate havoc-working droves of grasshoppers in Salvador and Guatemala some virus has been obtained from Brazil, and a number of insects are to be inoculated and turned loose. The disease thus spread is remarkably fatal to grasshoppers.

ELLENVILLE.

Ellenville, May 20.—The twenty-ninth annual meeting of the Ellenville Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held at the home of the president Mrs. Edward A. Smiley on Church street Wednesday afternoon, May 12. There was a large attendance of members and a few friends. The meeting was called to order by the president and opened with singing Mrs. John R. De Vany in charge with Mrs. Irving Carman at the piano. Upon invitations of the local union the county president, Mrs. Martha H. Bell of Milton, N.Y. was present and delivered a most excellent address which was very heartily received by all attending. A very beautiful song was given by a quartet composed of Mrs. John R. De Vany, Mrs. Fred Freer and the Misses Carolyn Clark and Bertha Edsall and a pleasing duet was contributed by Mrs. De Vany and Guy L. Gould and both selections were heartily received and enjoyed by all. This was followed by very encouraging reports of the year given by the secretary and treasurer and by the local superintendents of the different departments of work of the union. At the close of the session of reports the election of officers for ensuing year was held. The following officers were elected: Mrs. Edward A. Smiley, president; Mrs. Addison Stratton, first vice-president; Mrs. Henry J. Shurtler, second vice-president; Mrs. William Booth, Jr., third vice; Mrs. George F. Andrews, recording secretary; Mrs. Charles Van Kirk cor. secretary; Mrs. Jere Krom, treasurer. The superintendents of the different departments of work to be chosen later. The local union has had a year of profitable work together. At the close of the business session the hostess served refreshments and a very pleasant social hour was enjoyed by all attending. The time and place of the June meeting will be announced later.

Little Mr. Einstein, a traveling salesman, found himself far away from home, and naturally very homesick. He knew not a soul in the hotel at which he was staying and he decided that he must attract some attention at any cost. Presently a bellhop came through the lobby paging a Mr. Murphy. "Mr. Murphy!" he shouted. At this point Mr. Einstein jumped up and hollered: "Say, boy, vat initials?"—Everybody's.

PEACE AND WAR AS SEEN IN FRANCE.

Such contrasts as seen in the above picture are not uncommon in the war area in France. On the one hand farm work under the supervision of a small French boy is proceeding with the aid of an old fashioned harrow, assisted by a sturdy pair of Norman horses, while on the highway can be seen one of the latest types of armored car, designed to bring death and destruction to the enemy.

ITALIAN ALPINE REGIMENT.

ITALIAN MANEUVERS IN A SNOW-CAPPED MOUNTAIN.

The frontier of Italy is for a considerable distance through snow-capped and not easily passable mountain ranges. It is for this reason that special forces for the guarding of this national line are trained. The Bersaglieri really are Italy's best loved military force and are said by experts to be worth all the affection given them by the people. The picture shows an Italian Alpine Company of the Bersaglieri during maneuvers this spring. The men, it was reported at that time had been fully equipped and accounted and "were spoiling for a fight."

KINGSTON, N. Y., MAY 20, 1915.

The conduct of militant suffragists in badgering President Wilson and insisting upon unnecessary interviews with him during the time when he is occupied with vital national affairs is doing the "cause" much more harm than good. Even the English militants have had sense enough to discontinue their tactics for the present. A nagging woman is bad enough in time of peace, but when great questions are at issue she becomes an intolerable nuisance. The exhibition made by Mrs. Belmont's minions in New York a few days ago will have the effect of increasing by thousands the majority against female suffrage next election day.

Ambassador Gerard is warning Americans that they had better get out of Germany. Germans in Italy are being officially advised to leave that country. All of us have read what is happening to Germans located in England. In contrast to this let it be noted that Count von Bernstorff is not advising Germans in the United States to escape. He knows, as we all do, that no matter if we do have a war with the Kaiser, the lives and property of the Germans among us will be safe. There is a something about the disposition of our people which is unique. Some observers call it a sense of humor. Some think it is a better developed sense of proportion. Some argue that it is a superior civilization. Whatever it is, it is a good thing to have.

An interesting by-effect of the American note to Germany has been the waking up of the British Government to the fact that the United States will insist vigorously on all its rights as a neutral. Since last Friday the cases of no less than twenty American ships and cargoes have been dealt with satisfactorily, which is in sharp contrast with the dilatory proceedings which have been pursued for months. Obviously, this expeditious procedure has been taken because of the report from Washington that our Government was preparing a protest against the red tape methods of the British in settling the cases of intercepted ships. The case of a nation is similar to that of a man. If the man is too good-natured and lets everybody trample upon him, his supineness will be taken advantage of, but if he stands up for his rights they will be respected, and in the long run he will have less fighting to do.

It is a curious fact that the newspapers of Germany are unanimous in urging that their Government defy the United States in the submarine dispute. German sympathizers who conduct newspapers in this country take an opposite stand. The explanation seems to be that we have no censorship of the press in this country, so that all the facts are known here, while in Germany editors can know or say only what their Government permits. Opinions based on misinformation or partial knowledge are worthless, and at times dangerous. Thus far the American press has remained free, but only great vigilance will keep it in that condition. The petty tyrannies of the Postoffice Department indicate what certain public officials would do if they could. If the Government ever takes over the ownership of telephone and telegraph wires and the various means of transportation it can easily put out of business any newspaper whose utterances offend it. In that event there will be no check upon the performances of designing politicians, and all our prized free institutions will disappear.

Consumers are being swindled out of $60,000,000 a year in this State through short weights and measures, according to Franklin Brooks, the author of the net container law. He complains that there are only twenty-one men to inspect the thousands of retail stores in New York City. Just how many inspectors he thinks there ought to be we know not, but doubtless he favors making the number a thousand or so. In the whole State there are probably ten thousand men who would like a job as inspector. If they were all appointed, the swindling would go on just the same. The remedy lies not in the increase of inspectors, but in the education of housekeepers to weigh and measure the merchandise delivered to them. If they discover systematic cheating and do not care to take the trouble to prosecute, they can change to another dealer and tell their neighbors about it. There is already too much supervision, inspection and nosing around in this country. It is time to make the people rely upon themselves to some extent for their own protection.

OVER THE HILLS AND FAR AWAY.

(By Our Woman Editor.)

Some time ago when a young writer started work with a publishing house, he was cautioned, wisely enough, to "keep up the standard," and those who know him best are perfectly sure that that has been his aim. But his woes, as he confides them, are just the woes of the rest of the world—the difficulty of always living up to the best, or trying to.

And it is a difficulty involving something of discouragement, something of failure, something of tired spirits, and so much of all that times without number perhaps all of us feel that we must fold out tents, "like the Arabs, and as silently steal away."

Whatever the work may be, whether it involves home duties or responsibilities on the outside, professional or other labors, the physical self grows weary and calls for a long holiday, with never a thought of the familiar, work-a-day world.

Do you recall those lilting lines of Robert Louis Stevenson:

"The gauger walked with willing foot,
And aye the gauger played the flute;
And what should Master Gauger play,
But Over the Hills and Far Away.

When'er I buckle on my pack
And foot it gaily on the track,
O, pleasant gauger, long since dead,
I hear you fluting on ahead.

You go with me the self-same way,
The self-same air for me you play;
For I do think, and so do you,
It is the time to travel to.

And isn't it just the time we need
On those tired days—"Over the Hills
And Far Away."

Wanderlust does not always mean restlessness, a desire to be forever on the wing; it comes sometimes as a warning to drop tools, to listen to the gauger's tune and follow his light, joyous call.

If one cannot travel a step farther than over the nearby hills, even that is worth while, for it changes the outlook on that bad, bad day when the best seems miles and miles away, so far that somehow it almost takes the heart out of effort.

To some the gauger sings: "Let us go apart from the multitude; and rest and new life come in the long, still hours among woods and rocks, where the silence speaks and refreshes. There the tension and the struggles that make up our days drop away and the tyranny of small interests ceases to oppress.

You know, those runaway days do not come often enough, and it must be they are needed in the scheme of life, else the impulse would not be so common or so frequent. Those whose ways bring them in touch with many folk grow weary of it all and want to skip away—not from anyone in particular, just folk. It is not due to an unsociable spirit, but a real need for quiet and change.

But the gauger's song does not always tell of sequestered nooks or lead to ways apart. That song is all too familiar to some, and might prove the last straw to an overburdened soul left too much alone.

And to them "Over the hills and far away" means where there are folk, folk talkative and gay, folk that make them forget every new day that starts and closes just like the others gone before.

Someone was talking to me the other day about the manifold advantages of "piece" work—and I thought:

Doesn't it seem that of all the maddening things as a proposition to face one for life, the thought of working by the piece would be the worst, driving and crowding with the haste to get through and at another piece? To work at high tension and accomplish anything worth while may be within the possibilities of some; but most of us would soon welcome Master Gauger and his flute, and we never would want to come back.

Some days it is easy to live up to the best that is in us, but in some other dull periods it takes pluck just to try.

And then—"Over the hills and far away."

Forewarned.
Senator Borah complained in Washington of an underhand effort which was being made in certain quarters to defeat his recent bill.

"I would like to feel a little more frankness in the air," said the senator. "I wish the opponents of my bill would be as frank as the miner of Crimmon Gulch."

A foolish stranger once said to Three-Finger Sam of Crimmon Gulch: "Do you think it is polite for a man to sit in his shirt sleeves and play cards all day?" "Yes, sir," answered Sam, and maybe it'll be for your own good to remind you that the fewer sleeves a man has on when he plays cards about here, the less liable he is to fall under suspicion."—New York Times.

Money-maker Always.
As Herbert Corey tells it, he went to dinner once where Andrew Carnegie was a guest.

"After the eating was over and the speech-making had started," said Corey, "Mr. Carnegie reached in his pocket for something and pulled out a handful of small change. A shilling got away from him and fell on the floor, and at the first chance Mr. Carnegie got down under the table and looked for it."

"Did he find it?" asked one of the audience, to whom Corey was narrating the incident.

"Did he find it?" echoed Corey. "He found half a crown."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

"A. J. Drexel, one of the American volunteers in the British service, dined with me in London while on furlough," said a Cincinnati correspondent.

"Mr. Drexel told me that he habitually slept in France eight feet under ground in a clay cave. His bed was a door. His roof was another door. The entrance was a two-foot-square hole."

"Very luxurious—what you might call—diggings," laughed Mr. Drexel."—Cincinnati Times-Star.

Not His Style.
Andrew Carnegie, celebrating his 79th birthday in New York, said to a reporter:

"I impute my good health to my activity. I have always kept active. Nothing ages you, you know, like shiftlessness—like the shiftlessness that is found in certain parts of Florida."

"A Florida cracker and his wife were sitting on their stoop one day. The man was chewing tobacco, and the woman was dipping snuff. Suddenly a loud blare of music was heard, and a political procession passed by."

"Wall," said the man, "consarned ef thet thar ain't the finest political parade I've seen since our winter in Jacksonville."

"Fine parade, is she Bill?" said his wife.

"You bet!"

"Then I'd cartily like to see her," said the woman. "Pity I ain't facin' that way!"—New York Sun.

Nothing in Talk.
Harrington Emerson, the efficiency expert and efficiency counsel to the navy, said in a Washington discussion of efficiency in salesmanship:

"The young salesman can make no greater mistake than to think that loquacity and gab are the chief factors in making sales. They are, but, too often, the chief factors in losing sales."

A talky salesman—a what a bore!

"The representative of a promising novelty complained to me one day about his unsuccess."

"The machine," he said, "has got wonderful points, but I can't make people see them."

"Knowing the young man's weakness, I answered:

"How can you expect a customer to see your point, George, when you talk him blind?"—Washington Post.

In the jungles and fields, in our factories, etc., 104,000 men are employed to meet the demand for Goodyear tires.

No other tire commands anywhere near such favor. And this spring has shown, in sales to dealers, an increase of 52 per cent.

The reason is, we fortify our tires. We give the best that others give, plus five exclusive features. In costly ways, employed by no one else, we combat:

Rim-Cuts

Punctures
Skidding

And we never skimp. Despite all price reductions, Goodyears are better than ever. Lately we have added

A New Way to Sweep Without Raising Dust

Yes—think of it! No more dust clouds rising to choke you—no more need of wearing a dust cap. You can dust your ornaments first, then sweep, and your ornaments will be as dust-free as before you started.

Simply sprinkle a little Nomordust across your floor—then sweep it ahead of you as you go, and your floors will be cleaner than you can possibly get them without it.

It makes carpets look like new, bringing out the faded colors, and is equally fine for wood floors and linoleum. You only have to sweep half as often, because Nomordust gets all the dust out of a room every time you sweep instead of merely spreading the dust around, as ordinary sweeping does.

A million women are already lightening their housekeeping tasks with Nomordust, and they all say they would never again be without it. You try it! Get a 10c. can at your grocers to-day. He'll return your money if you're not more than pleased.

"Means just what it says"
All Grocers—10c. & 25c. a Can.

Benefited by Infirmity.
Jonah Wedgwood, the famous potter and scientist, suffered from a disease of the right knee, which necessitated the amputation of the limb. Referring to this infirmity, Mr. Gladstone once declared, "It sent his mind inwards; it drove him to meditate upon the laws and secrets of his art. The result was that he arrived at a perception envied by an Athenian potter."

PLANNING FOR NEW PLAYGROUND

This evening an important conference will be held at 8 o'clock in Mayor Canfield's office on John street to complete preparations and plans for transforming the waste land and swamp in the rear of North Front street into a playground for the children and all interested, who will help, are invited to be present.

A. E. Rose and E. O. Rose of the Carl Company have given permission to use the land in the rear of the big store for a playground and Everett Fowler has been busy for some time past soliciting funds to cover the cost of filling in and grading the swamp and waste land.

A well-known landscape artist has donated his services free and is preparing plans for laying out the playground and it is expected that by the first of July that the swamp will be transformed into a beauty spot.

Mayor Canfield has been interested in the project and is having the street department assist in filling in the swamp which will be drained off. The O. & W. has also been interested and will assist in the filling in of the grounds. At the present time the layer of top soil being removed from upper Clinton avenue is being hauled to North Front street and dumped in the rear and a road is being laid out leading down to the waste land.

The plans call for the laying out of a ball grounds as there is plenty of room in the rear of North Front street that can be utilized for that purpose after it is filled in and graded. It is expected that the services of a competent man will also be secured to have charge of the playground.

The city will also install are lights on the grounds and steps will be built leading down to the playground from the Fair street extension.

A number of citizens have become interested in the project and there is no question but that it will be a success.

The swamp in the rear of North Front street has long been an eyesore and any plans tending to wipe out the swamp should meet with the hearty approval of all who have the interests of the city at heart.

GARRISON'S WAR
TALK TO PEACE MEN

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Lake Mohonk, New York, May 20.

The United States must arm immediately if it is to keep its place among the nations, Secretary of War Lindley M. Garrison told the pacifists gathered for the annual conference on international arbitration here tonight in a brilliant speech carefully argued and bristling with striking epigrams.

He declared the real problem of American national defense is to get the people to look the facts squarely in the face. Only a united nation can accomplish anything in arming for the conflict which is bound to come sooner or later.

We will be despised among the nations of the earth and our righteousness will not save us from the aggressions of the unrighteous if we remain weak and flabby, he declared. We must be ready to make war in order to keep the blessings of peace, he said. Self preservation is the first law of a nation.

A nation to deserve preservation must be strong, just, righteous, self-respecting and courageous," he continued. "Since it only obtained those virtues by conflict of one sort or another, it can only retain them and thus insure its own preservation by being prepared in every proper way to defend them from the inevitable assaults which will be made against them."

"At first blush it seems amazing that there could be wide spread inattention on the part of our people to this matter which so vitally and intimately concerns them, and quite as amazing that there could be disagreement as to certain fundamental considerations and confusion of thought and judgment with respect to them. There is, however, just such inattention, resulting in neglect of the subject, and just such confusion of thought and division of counsel, and we must face that situation and deal with it as it is. Until most of us think alike on this subject, there is no hope of a proper settlement of it."

"The early settlers of this country brought with them an inveterate hatred of tyranny and oppression and all things connected therewith, and military force was closely connected therewith. This prejudice cannot survive if brought forth and subjected to the light of reason and of common sense. Here, now, in this country, with the form of our government and the character of our people, there is no shred of foundation for any fear that military force will impinge in the slightest degree upon the civil authority, or be used by the civil authorities, under whose command it is, to tyrannize over or oppress the people."

"Another controlling factor in turning people aside from the proper consideration of this subject arises out of their abhorrence or repulsion from what it connotes. To think of military preparations and military preparations bring to the mind warfare with all its horrors. Every humane and kindly instinct within us shrinks from the contemplation of the evils attendant upon war."

"Right-thinking people the world over have for centuries deprecated war and its evils; and if these evils could have been abolished by the simple process of refusing to think of them, that process would by this time have had world-wide application. Sensible people, however, realize the impossibility of so simple and easy a solution of this as of other similar distressing conditions of individual and national life."

"No; turning aside won't do—it not only will not prevent the calamity, but will also serve to make its effects more disastrous if and when it does come. If we would respect ourselves and deserve the respect of others, and have that courage without which man is useless, we must not shrink from or shirk our problem because of any of its repellent or repulsive features."

"A great deal of inattention and considerable opposition is based upon the statement and belief that if a nation takes military precautions and makes military preparations, it invites what it seeks to prevent or repel. This contention does not seem to have any foundation in reason or in fact. It certainly is not so in any other like situation either in our spiritual or our physical life. Those who entertain and give expression to this feeling would be shocked, I am sure, if a simple attitude to that which they have in this matter were applied to other like matters. Does the individual invite evil by preparing himself to withstand the assaults of temptation? Does the citizen invite the conflagration by preparing a force to extinguish and minimize the results of fire? Do men invite ill health by taking precautions to preserve the soundness of their bodies and by having a force of trained physicians to prevent and minimize the disastrous consequences of disease? Does a body of scientific sanitarians, trained and ready to cope with epidemics, invite the latter or make them more likely to come upon us? Do business men who make wise disposition of their means against the possibility of panic, invite the latter and make it more likely to occur? Surely none of these things are so, and just as surely there is no rational basis for believing that a nation which takes proper military precautions and makes proper military preparations is inviting war."

"They, however, who deprecate the taking of these precautions and the making of these preparations, urge still further opposition somewhat akin to that just disposed of. They say: If you are strong enough to fight, you are more likely to fight, or, stated in the negative, if your nation is not prepared for war, your nation will be less likely to be involved in war."

"Whereabouts in the realms of spiritual or physical life do those who urge this contention find any basis for its soundness? Do the things which we call evil refrain from assaulting the weak, the flabby and the feeble? In the physical sphere, where and when has feebleness and flabbiness and weakness acted as a shield and a buckler? Where in the history of nations do we find the strong staying its hands because of the feebleness of its rival? The pages of history literally abound with instances to the contrary. Civilizations which in their day reached the highest pinnacles of mental, spiritual and physical life, have disappeared from the face of the earth, and their names are almost forgotten by men, because they became feeble and flabby and were toppled over by the strong."

"If by this suggestion those who entertain it mean, as they would seem to mean, that the strong are more likely to use their strength than the weak, and that therefore a strong nation is more likely to go to war than a weak nation, let them frankly say so and be prepared to answer the obvious question which then arises: 'That question is, how do you justify your trust that other nations which are strong will refrain from misusing their strength against us, if you fear that we, if strong, would misuse our strength against other nations?' There is no basis for any such unjust animadversion against our nation and our people."

"Righteousness is not self-executing. If it is to prevail, the unrighteous must be overthrown; and wherever injustice and unrighteousness take up arms against the just, upon the just and the righteous, the latter must be prepared to withstand the assault and to prevail, if they are to survive as moral forces in the world."

"Peace—yes; peace based upon righteousness—yes; but peace based upon the majority of mankind, so far as history shows us, have always been righteous. A strong minority from time to time have overthrown them and triumphed. But such conquests are not lasting, and the conflict goes on and on."

"In our civil life we endeavor to prepare the individual citizen to withstand the assaults of temptation and to live righteously, and we prepare physical force and use it against those whose unrighteous conduct disturbs the peace of the just and righteous. Hence, the use of physical force is unthinkable until that day when unrighteousness is abolished from the earth and mankind has ceased to be subject to the present forces of inanimate and animate nature."

"Some find justification in neglect and inattention to the subject, that, for one reason or another, (or, more truly stated, for no reason) war will never come to this nation. Here again it seems difficult to find a shred of foundation for such a belief. Certainly I cannot find any assurance which vindicates such a judgment. Our geographical position undoubtedly minimizes the danger of invasion of our continental possessions. Our lack of aggressive intention and our righteous intentions minimize the sources and causes of war; but we ourselves have frequently been at war; our isolation has not as yet assured our freedom from conflict; and other nations relatively as isolated, have been involved in war; and no sound reason can be adduced which would justify a same man in concluding that isolation alone spells safety. Furthermore, our isolation is geographical only. No dwells into itself alone. Modern conditions have caused the interests of nations to be so related as those of families who have intermarried. The interests of many of the large nations today are inextricably interwoven with those of some or all of the others."

"Nor can sure reliance be placed upon our lack of aggressive intention, our freedom from covetousness or our tendency toward righteousness. The conflicts and struggles in the spiritual and the physical spheres are not always or often between the unrighteous and the righteous or between the covetous. Evil preys upon virtue, the unjust upon the just, and the covetous upon those whose possessions they covet."

"Self-respect, without which man is an invertebrate animal, requires that we should be prepared to protect that which we cherish, which not only includes our material possessions, but that intangible something which makes us a distinctive nation in the eyes of the world. Some one has very finely said that it does not matter so much what happens as the courage with which you face it; and very often the consequences of conflict, as horrible as many of its incidents are, have brought forth some fine, hitherto undeveloped strain in a people and made them worthy to contribute to the progress of civilization."

"No; we cannot justify neglect on this score; we cannot rest assurance upon righteous intention, or lack of bad motives, or possession of good motives or isolation."

"Another obstacle to the proper consideration of the subject is potent though perhaps in many cases unconscious. It is the question of expense or cost. Men set aside for military service while so serving, and money spent for military material, are assumed to be wasted; and this consideration causes men to turn aside from a further consideration of the subject."

"It goes without saying, of course, that unnecessary expenditure in any line is waste; but it is equally true that a necessary expense, whatever the tangible return therefrom may be, is not waste."

"There need be no fear that the people will shrink from any proper expense attendant upon proper measures of common defense after a common agreement has been reached."

"There is one other potent factor making for neglect and inattention to the present consideration and settlement of this great subject, and that is one in which you here at this place in this association have peculiar interest. Do not misunderstand me in what I am about to say: I do not attribute any thoughtless consideration to you or your associates, I refer to those who refuse present consideration of existing conditions because of a belief or hope that by some international agreement, new conditions will obtain and new forces be brought into play: I can and do entirely sympathize with every sane and sensible movement that tends to abolish conflict and to insure peace; but I am utterly out of sympathy with the idea that we should neglect or postpone consideration of what is now the existing condition, because of a hope or belief or even conviction that it may be altered, even radically altered in the future."

"No sensible mind can believe that we will be more forceful in attaining our aspirations for peace because of an open exhibit of feebleness and weakness in the solving of existing problems."

"The voice which is firm and clear, which is heard and proceeds from the strong, sound, virile man pledged in word and in deed to righteousness. Those who hope to be in the van of a great movement to alter the current of human history and establish a new era, must show themselves to be courageous and wise and self-respecting in the way they have handled the duties enjoined upon them in their national life."

"Hideous as is the face of war, abhorrent as are the evils consequent upon it, its results in the long run cannot be so fatal to a nation as would be the failure of that nation to courageously and fearlessly ascertain its duty and do it. The former, terrible as they are, are evanescent and can be repaired; the latter eat into and consume the very sources of virtue and destroy the national life at its core."

"I purposely refrain from discussing the policy which should be adopted and the details which must be carried out to make that policy effective. Difficult as it will be to properly do these things, such difficulties are immeasurably increased by a lack of a coherent public opinion and will be immeasurably lightened when public opinion has crystallized and is put in motion. If the individual citizen can be brought to realize his responsibility in this connection and will banish prejudice, refuse to be diverted by sentiment unfounded on facts, and will not shrink or shirk his duties as he thus finds it, the rest of the task will be possible of accomplishment. Do not shrink from what you must consider do not permit yourself to be inverted by terms of opprobrium."

"Militarism is used as a term of reproach to divert proper consideration of what must be considered, if the subject is to be considered at all. Militarism in the sense of having the military force interfere in the slightest way the conduct of our government by our civil authorities, is not conceivable in this country, is not urged by any one, and is not feared even by those who use the word in that sense, so as to prevent proper consideration and to confuse the public mind."

"Militarism in the sense of the absolute necessity of proper military precautions and military preparations, is the very subject matter for consideration; it is the imperative question for decision and it needs stout hearts and sound minds to decide it."

"We are surely not so deluded as to believe that we can reach by intuition what others can only acquire by training and experience. We are surely not so sacrilegious or irreverent as to believe that Providence has unjustly discriminated in our favor and against the other peoples of the world. We surely will not admit that any vital national duty will be neglected and left undone because we shrink from the proper contemplation of it. We surely will not admit that we are unable to read history intelligently, to consider facts relevantly and to reach conclusions sensibly."

"We, as a nation, are exceptionally set apart only in one respect, namely the freedom of our people under our institutions to develop and expand and make the most of themselves without fetters or restrictions. This was the great and momentous contribution of the founders of our Republic to the question of human government. It was epochal and of tremendous import. It means more to the future welfare of mankind than any other existing political fact. The institutions are the very Ark of the Covenant; and if we are worthy to possess them, we must show that we cherish them and will protect and defend them."

FEDERATION APPEAL FOR NEEDED FUNDS

At the special meeting of the executive committee of the Federation of Women's Clubs, held this morning, the main discussion of the meeting bore directly upon the financial condition of the Federation. It should be remembered that the money contributed directly to Mrs. MacMillan's fund this past winter was distributed by her personally to the needy of our city, although she is the paid local social worker of the Federation, and none of this money passed through the treasury of the Federation.

Owing to the unusual demands made upon the Federation this exceptional winter, and to the fact that many funds have been operated through the medium of the Federation, its finances are in a serious state. The financial summing up of the year shows that the Day Nursery fund, contributed by the Monday Afternoon Sewing Club, and the Visiting Nurse fund, absorb more than the total amount now in the Federation's own treasury, leaving the Federation in debt to the above-mentioned organizations to the amount of $106.

Therefore it is imperative, for the furtherance of all the philanthropic activities of the Federation, that the coming Tag Day be most generously supported. The Federation wishes to state that there will be a house to house canvass during the first week of June, for the raising of funds, for the covering of the deficit and the carrying forward of next year's work, which will culminate in a full Tag Day, Saturday, June 5. The aid of all is asked for the work.

A Pickpocket's Trick.

"What puzzles me," said a well dressed man to a police captain to whom he had complained that a roll of bills had been taken from his trousers pocket in a subway car, "is how the thief got the money, since I never felt his hand in my pocket."

To which the official replied: "Let me explain. As soon as the thief had completed his preliminary work to satisfy himself that you had some money in your pocket he set to work to get it out. But he didn't put his hand in your pocket. This is what he did. He took hold of the lining of your pocket with his thumb and index finger, and when the car lurched or jolted he pulled the lining up a little more until finally the edge of the bill came in sight. As soon as enough of the bill had appeared to enable him to get a grip on it he carefully plucked it out of your pocket, and you never knew the difference. It appears simple, but it requires considerable skill."—New York Sun.

Babylonians Feared Ghosts.

In a lecture on "Burial Customs in Mesopotamia and Egypt" Dr. L. W. King, F. S. A., said the spirit which animated the Egyptians in their varied and changing practices toward the dead was based on affection and reverence, but the Babylonian, in the main, was prompted by fear. The Babylonians were probably more spook ridden than any other nation of antiquity, and their magical texts made it clear that the most terrible class of spirits were the ghosts of the dead, who for some reason had been unable to enter the underworld. Driven by hunger and thirst, such a ghost might roam about and fasten on any one with whom it had had relations in this life, and it would plague him until he performed the rites that could give it peace. It was mainly to lay the ghost and prevent it from "haunting" that the Babylonians were scrupulous in performing the due burial rites.—London Times.

Georgians on the Caucasus.

Though the Russians are the dominant race in the Caucasus, the aristocrats of the very mixed population of that region are the Georgians. A people of mysterious antecedents—their race, according to some ethnologists, being older even than the Egyptians—they stand upon a higher plane of civilization and culture than any of their neighbors. Formerly Georgia was an independent kingdom, and its people, converted to Christianity in the fourth century, have never relapsed into the Mohammedanism of the surrounding tribes. Their golden age was the twelfth century, in the days of the great Queen Tamara. Now there are no more kings in Georgia, but an amazing number of princes. It is a Russian joke that every Georgian, whatever his occupation, boasts a title. It might be added, with more truth, that every Georgian is a poet.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Reason and Instinct.

A certain north country miner was particularly proud of a clever little dog he possessed. At times he was apt to claim a little too much for his pet, and one morning a neighbor was endeavoring to point out the difference between instinct and reason when an amusing interruption occurred. A seedy looking tramp turned the corner, and the dog, without so much as a word from his master, sprang into the road and offered battle.

"There you are," laughed the miner as the dog snapped and snarled around the heels of the tramp. "E don't like the looks of the chap. That's instinct."

Suddenly the tramp turned and kicked the dog into an adjacent field. "There you are," ejaculated the miner's friend grimly. "The chap don't like the looks of the dog. An' that's reason."—London Tit-Bits.

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

The will of C. Cuyler Heermance of the town of Saugerties has been admitted to probate in the surrogate's court. To his son, Rolland E. Heermance, the testator bequeaths the sum of $100 and the balance of the estate he gives to his wife, Eudora A. Heermance, whom he appoints executrix. The will was executed January 4, 1915, and witnessed by Byron L. Davis of Saugerties and Mary E. Heermance of Albany. The value of the estate is $5,000 real estate and $5,000 personal property. Byron L. Davis appeared for the executrix.

The will of Bridget Cleary of the town of Saugerties was admitted to probate. This is the will which was partially destroyed by fire while in the office of Former Surrogate Davis at Saugerties, before whom proceedings had been taken for its probate a number of years after Mrs. Cleary's death. To her daughters, Mary Devery and Bridget Condren, the testatrix bequeaths the sum of $50 and $100 respectively and the balance of the estate she gives equally to her children, Margaret Cleary, Catherine Cleary, Thomas Cleary and John Cleary, appointing the last named executrix. The will was executed March 8, 1884, and witnessed by the late Herman Winans and the late M. T. Martin, both of Saugerties. The legacies were paid after the death of the testatrix but the real estate was never disposed of. It is valued at $2,500. Frederick E. W. Darrow appeared for the executrix.

A petition for a construction of one clause of the will of James A. Lown of the town of Woodstock was filed by Luella L. Eckert of this city, one of the residuary legatees, and a citation was issued returnable June 7. After the death of Mr. Lown, his will was admitted to probate and letters testamentary were issued to Emma J. Longendyke. She died in March of this year and letters of administration on her estate were issued to her husband, Henry M. Longendyke. Letters of administration with the will annexed were issued on the estate of James A. Lown to Margaret L. Lown. The only part of the estate undisposed of at the time of Mrs. Longendyke's death was certain real estate which had been devised to her during her lifetime and which was directed to be sold after her death and the proceeds of such sale divided equally among Luella L. Eckert, James H. Longendyke, Nina L. German and Lila Whispeil (now Lila Curtis). Margaret L. Lown is about to advertise the property for sale, but Luella L. Eckert claims that she has no right to do so since James A. Lown left sufficient personal property to pay his debts, expenses of his funeral and administration of his estate and also to pay a legacy of $100 to the Woodstock Cemetery, and she claims also that if any sale is to be had, it should be made by the residuary legatees and not by the administratrix. J. DePuy Hasbrouck appeared for the petitioner.

In the estate of Eliza C. Ellis of the town of Plattekill, a petition for a judicial settlement was filed by Hasbrouck Ellis, the executor, and a citation was issued returnable June 7. DeWitt Ostrander appeared for the petitioner.

"Hair of the Dog."

When a man is debilitated from the effects of the previous night's debauch he is frequently counseled to take "a hair of the dog that bit him," the meaning being that he should take a little of the same kind of liquor that had upset him. The saying is a remnant of an old superstitious belief that the burnt hair of a dog was an antidote against the ill effects of intoxication.

First Moving Pictures.

The first moving picture machine was patented in 1867. In 1893 the cinematograph was produced by Lumier. This was the first machine to project on a screen pictures from a film. HIS WIFE'S TRIUMPH.

A Record That Used to Inspire Green, the Famous Historian.

It has been the fate of many men of letters to have ill health bearing them down as they struggle on toward literary achievements. Thus beset in recent times were Stevenson, Richard Jeffries and J. R. Green. Each of these, it happened, had a high hearted wife to keep him up, even to help him with the actual labor of writing. "The Life and Letters of J. R. Green" show forth a great and sweet man. They show, too, a wife whose sympathy and fortitude helped to make his accomplishment possible.

In copying the vast amount of manuscript of her husband's books Mrs. Green contracted writer's cramp and was forced to stop using her right hand. This looked like a final obstacle in the way of the invalid, who did much of his thinking in bed and could not write himself. But Mrs. Green set to work at once learning to write with her left hand.

One of her first practice pages, which she was about to destroy with the rest, her husband took quietly and put in his pocket. Years afterward when ill health seemed unbearable and in discouragement he felt that he could not work he used to take out that piece of paper, a living record of his wife's triumph over difficulty. When he saw the painful, patient strokes by which Mrs. Green had learned to write with her left hand he could work on with something near to inspiration.

A Priceless Idol.

It is a part of the creed of Mohammedans to smash the noses of all idols they may come across. When they invaded India they defaced in this way every Hindu god. A figure of Vishnu cut in green jade was buried in the bed of the Ganges during this invasion and is now preserved in a temple in Benares. It is the only perfect image left of all the old idols, and its sanctity is such that the priests at Allahabad have offered for it its weight in gold, together with two magnificent rubies, formerly the eyes of Buddha. But they cannot buy it.

Wasted Effort.

At a fire recently a brave fireman came gasping and panting from the burning building with his eyebrows singed in the flames. Under one arm he carried a small but heavy box, which he deposited in a place of safety with the air of a man who had saved a box of government bonds from destruction. On opening the box it was found to contain six bottles of a new patent fire extinguisher.—Argonaut.

ROUMANIA'S CAPITAL.

Bukharest is a Great Artistic and Educational Center.

Describing Bukharest, the capital of Roumania, a statement issued by the National Geographic society says:

"The Roumanians have spared no effort or thought toward making Bukharest, their capital city, a real capital and not just one of the larger Balkan towns, cut to the severe design of the modern commercial city that is found throughout the west. The whole history of the Roumanians since the casting off of the Turkish yoke has been one of conservative progress flavoured with enterprise, of thrift lightened by keen appreciation of the embellishments and pleasures of life. And in Bukharest one finds more artistic, literary and scientific life than in any other part of the peninsula.

"Bukharest is an attractive city of 300,000. It is laid out with many broad boulevards and avenues, as becomes a capital, and has, as Paris, Berlin and Washington, famous drives and parks within its area, an 'avenue of parades' and zoological and botanical gardens. The city is built in a hollow between the hills upon both sides of the Dambovita river, which is crossed by twelve ornate bridges. There are some truly magnificent buildings upon its broad thoroughfares, among the most prominent of which are the royal palace, the university, the national theater and the palace of justice. Bukharest has some squallid sections, with narrow, crooked streets, but these are reminiscent of the Turkish regime and are fast disappearing. While Bukharest does a considerable commercial business, it is of no importance industrially.

"Bukharest, like our own capital, has been developed primarily as a capital. The Roumanians have chosen Paris and Vienna as their models and have produced a judicious blending of the two upon the much smaller Balkan scale. Bukharest has plenty of good music, and its people, who gather in the concert halls or enjoy the free military concerts in the evening along some promenade, are appreciative and critical listeners. The national theater brings varied offerings, and that the best. Then the entertainments of the little capital are discreet imitations of social Paris, with a touch of mild Viennese friendliness. Furthermore, Bukharest, as also becomes a European capital, is a great educational center. Its schools, academies, colleges and universities are models for Balkan countries."

AUSTRIAN AND GERMAN ENVOYS ADVISE SUBMARINE CURB.

Washington, May 20.—The diplomatic activity of Dr. Constantin T. Dumba, Austrian ambassador, and Count von Bernstorff, German ambassador, both of whom are understood to be endeavoring to prevent a rupture in the friendly relations between the Germanic nations and the United States, is attracting much attention.

Both the Austrian German ambassadors are understood to have telegraphed to their governments urging suspension of submarine attacks on passenger ships while diplomatic negotiations were in progress, because of the serious situation which had resulted from the sinking of the Lusitania. They have cautioned extreme care lest the sinking of another ship carrying American lives might lead to an immediate break between Germany and the United States.

If This Is Your Birthday
MAY 20

All people born from April 19 to May 19, come under the sign of Taurus and the planet Venus.

Knowing this it is easy to tell their characteristics and the lines of work they are best fitted for.

The woman of this birthdate should marry.
She will find her husband best fitted for her disposition and likes and dislikes in this birthdate or in January or September. This person has a wonderful power of emotion, with great strength of will and accomplishes whatever he sets out to do.

This person will have a quick temper and when in a rage cannot be reasoned with or controlled.

He is very opinionated and self-willed and will do things to his own disadvantage rather than follow another's advice even when he knows it is best.

For the coming month, domestics, cooks, waitresses and housekeepers will do well to use The Freeman Want Ads and to watch them carefully each day for positions.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, May 20.—Moderate selling caused recessions in stocks at the opening this morning, but within a few minutes the weakness disappeared and many issues reflected a brisk demand and made good upturns. Most interest was attached to the trading in Steel Common which yielded $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{1}{4}$, but rallied to $\frac{1}{2}$ at the start to 65 and rose to 65 $\frac{1}{2}$.

The war order stocks made good gains on a few transactions. Bethlehem Steel moved up $\frac{1}{4}$ to 137 $\frac{1}{2}$ and Baldwin Locomotive $\frac{1}{4}$ to 45 $\frac{1}{2}$. Chesapeake and Ohio reflected uncertainty over the dividend outlook, dropping $\frac{1}{4}$ to 40 $\frac{1}{2}$. Missouri Pacific also showed a weak tone, declining $\frac{1}{2}$ to 10 $\frac{1}{2}$.

Noon—Price movements were irregular through the late forenoon but the general list was in scant supply. The war order stocks showed some strength. Bethlehem Steel moving up to 139, a total gain of six points for the morning. Westinghouse made a gain of 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ points, selling at 90 $\frac{1}{2}$. United States Steel advanced 1 point to 53 $\frac{1}{2}$ and Baldwin Locomotive moved up to 47 $\frac{1}{2}$, a total gain of 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ for the morning.

The copper issues made vigorous advances. Amalgamated moving up $\frac{1}{2}$ to 65, Anaconda $\frac{1}{4}$ to 41 $\frac{1}{2}$. Chicago Copper 1 point to 43 $\frac{1}{2}$. Tennessee Copper one point to 33 $\frac{1}{2}$. Missouri Pacific moved up $\frac{1}{4}$ to 11 $\frac{1}{2}$. Reading one point to 14 $\frac{1}{2}$. American Locomotive one point to 45 and Pressed Steel Car 1 point to 45.

Rock Island and Baltimore & Ohio were the weakest issues, the latter dropping two points to 39 and the former $\frac{1}{4}$ to 19 $\frac{1}{2}$. Money loaning at 2 per cent.

Westinghouse shaded its best in the first half of the last hour, selling around 89 $\frac{1}{2}$ against 87 $\frac{1}{2}$ at the opening. Missouri Pacific was prominent selling up to 13 $\frac{1}{2}$, a gain of 3 points from the morning price. A number of other issues made good gains and the tone was firm. Dealings, however, were not large, many traders holding off pending further news of the Italian situation.

The stock market closed steady; governments unchanged, other bonds steady.

SOCIETY NOTES.

The telephone call of Mrs. C. N. Reed, society news reporter for The Freeman, has been changed to 1012-W.

Miss Helen Wood, Miss Miriam Pitts and Miss Ethel Rose will be the hostesses at an informal dance at the 1054 Fair street on Friday evening.

The Monday Club will hold an open meeting on Saturday afternoon of this week at the home of Mrs. G. D. B. Hasbrouck, when each member will be entitled to bring one guest. The meeting will be held at three o'clock, and Miss Lola Marsh of New York City will give one of her very interesting talks on "The Women of Browning."

Joseph P. McCalliff entertained a number of his friends at his home in West Hurley Monday evening, May 17, in honor of his seventeenth birthday. The evening was pleasantly spent in dancing and refreshments were served. At a late hour the guests departed for their respective homes, having had a delightful time and wishing him many happy birthdays.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Evelyn Jenks, known on the stage as Gene Gracey, and Louis Bevier, Jr., of New York. The prospective bride has been a singer in the chorus of "The Peasant Girl," while the groom is a practicing lawyer in New York.

He is a son of Professor Bevier, dean of Rutgers College, and a grandson of the late Louis Bevier of Marlborough. Mr. Bevier is engaged in the practice of law at No. 26 Exchange Place, New York.

An informal complimentary dance will be given by the Daughters of Isabella on the evening of Thursday, May 20, in Pythian Hall. Each member has the privilege of inviting two friends and a pleasant evening is assured to all who attend. Maitenholder will furnish the music for dancing, which will begin at 8:30. The committee arranging this affair is composed of the following: Mrs. William O'Reilly, Miss Katharine Roach, Miss Mollie Cullen, Miss Anna Cavanaugh and Miss Alice Britt.

The Sunday school class of the Rev. P. N. Chase of Bethany Chapel spent Wednesday evening at his home, 15 Green street. There were present: Mabel Spencer, Mary Spencer, Margaret Bush, Carrie Bush, Mae Helen, Helen Webber, Doris Herdman and Katharine Reed. Singing and games filled much of the evening. Fruit, cake and warm maple sugar were served. It added somewhat to the occasion that it happened on the fortieth anniversary of the marriage of Dr. and Mrs. Chase, they being married May 19, 1875.

A great many from Kingston attended the dance given at the Mountaintop Hotel, Bushnellville, N. Y., under the management of P. J. Smith, formerly of Kingston. This was the first of a series of weekly dances to be given at this famous mountain resort during the coming summer. These dances will be under the management of P. J. Lyons of this city and music will be furnished by Weed's orchestra. The next dance will be given June 2, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday square dances, will be furnished by the above well known orchestra.

Widener-Vanderbeck.
Miss Myrtle Vanderbeck of Malden and Joseph L. Widener of New York were married at Malden on Saturday evening May 15 by the Rev. Grant E. Robinson.

Colonial Tennis Club.
The grounds of the Colonial Tennis Club on Washington avenue, near Warren street, have been put in shape for the season. The season will be opened on Monday, May 31, and a general invitation has been extended to the members of the club and friends to be present that day. Refreshments will be served on the grounds. The officers of the club this year are: President, Elva H. Bogart; vice-president, Ward B. Everett; secretary, Harold Burroughs; and treasurer, Roger H. Loughran.

Support Music Festival.
The people of Kingston are just waking up to the fact that this Spring Music Festival, to be given by the Kingston Symphony Society next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, is really a big thing for Kingston, not only in a musical and educational way, but in a business way. Appreciating this fact, there is just one way to support the Kingston Symphony Society and that is by the purchase of tickets for the full course, if possible, and for "The Creation" night at least. For several years now this society has been giving Kingston a series of concerts of marvelous educational and entertaining qualities at the most reasonable "popular" prices, and even the festival prices come under this head. The people from the out-of-town places where the choruses are working to come in and join the Kingston chorus for the presentation of "The Creation" with the orchestra, are very enthusiastic, and tickets in these places are selling well. If our own people are to secure the seats they want they should lose no time in getting their tickets, for the tickets are already selling well. Tickets may be secured at E. Winter's Sons' store on John street, Maben & Walker's, Broadway, and the Connolly drug store, the Strand.

Now just a word about the conductor, who for love of the best in music, and its spread throughout our land, is doing all this terribly strenuous work of conducting the chorus here in Kingston and who has visited the other choruses from time to time, Norman Coke-Jephcott. Mr. Coke-Jephcott is a native of England, his home in his boyhood days having been in a decidedly musical center, in fact an art center in England, Coventry. There he was privileged to assist in the conducting of the great festival choir of Holy Trinity Church in the giving of the great oratorios, and so is especially fitted to conduct this chorus for "The Creation." But we do not need to go across the water to prove that Mr. Coke-Jephcott is doing masterly work in this conducting here, for each rehearsal gives added proof of his ability. Wednesday evening's rehearsal in the high school auditorium was astonishingly fine and promises a remarkably excellent production, for the initial performance of this chorus gathered together from so many points. This evening the basses and tenors will have a special rehearsal and on Friday, tomorrow evening, the last full rehearsal before the final public rehearsal next Wednesday afternoon, will take place. It is vitally important that every member of the chorus be present tomorrow, Friday night, in order that final arrangements about many things may be made.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES.
At the annual meeting of the American Automobile Association held in Boston on Monday, Elva H. Bogart, president of the Automobile Club of Ulster county, was elected a member of the board of directors of the A. A. A. for the ensuing year to represent the local club.

Governor Whitman has signed the amendment to the highway law in relation to lights on vehicles. According to the new law every vehicle on wheels whether stationary or in motion while on a street, avenue, highway or bridge shall have lights visible from front and rear from one hour after sunset to one hour before sunrise. Vehicles carrying hay or straw are exempted. The state commission of highways is empowered to except vehicles on application by the owner. MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, May 20.—There are two reasons why Phinney Boyle, of Lowell, Mass., became a prize fighter. One is because his parents hitched the name of Phinney onto him; the other is an offer of $5 that lured him into his first professional ring engagement.

And now, less than two years since he climbed into a prize ring for the first time, Phinney has risen to such heights that with another six months of experience he will dethrone Johnny Kilbane—if Johnny gives him a battle.

The parents of Phinney thought Phinney was a very pretty monicker to hang onto their offspring. The boyhood acquaintances of Phinney thought it pretty, too; in fact, they thought it too pretty for a boy and called it owner a "sissy." But the majority called Phinney a "sissy" just once.

Phinney fought in defense of his name—and he fought often. Constant battling gave him quite a reputation as a bare knuckle battler back in Lowell and before he donned long trousers Phinney was known from farther afield about his first name.

Phinney had just celebrated his 19th birthday when a friend slipped him a ticket for a prize fight that was scheduled by one of the clubs in Lowell. That was in September 1913. A tough young battler by the name of "Sykle" Evans was slated to meet a boxer from Boston.

When the time for the scrap came along, the manager of the club got into the ring and announced: "The boy who was to fight Evans has crawled out of the match. Is there anyone in the crowd who would like to go on with Evans?"

For a moment that was silence in the crowd and then one of the audience jumped up and said: "I guess I can find a boy."

Then he rushed over to where Phinney was sitting.

"Say, you go in and fight that guy," said the friend to Phinney.

Phinney looked at him in a puzzled way.

"What? Me go in and fight him? What for? He ain't been kidding about my name, has he?"

"No, but you're liable to get the $2 if you box him," said the friend.

"Three dollars!" gasped Phinney.

"Say, you ain't kidding are you?"

"No. Come on up to the ring. I'll see to it that you get the money."

And Phinney, led by the hand, walked up to ring and was introduced to the club manager.

"Here's a boy that will fight Evans," said the friend.

"Will you fight?" asked the manager.

"Yes, if I get the money. This fellow says you'll give me $3. Was he kidding?"

"No. I'll give you $5. How's that?"

Phinney Boyle looked at the manager in amazement.

"Let's see the money" demanded the skeptical Irishman.

"Here is it" and the manager extracted $5 from his jeans and handed it to the amazed Boyle.

Boyle hopped into the ring and wanted the fight to start at once. He feared the manager might change his mind. He wanted to fight in his street clothes and with bare fists. But he was provided with trunks and boxing gloves were put on his hands.

Phinney Boyle walked into the center of the ring as the first round opened. Evans rushed him, landed a couple of light punches and then made a swing for Phinney's jaw. Phinney moved out of range and then sent a right to the jaw of Evans. The fight was over.

Before the end of 1913 Phinney fought 16 battles under the direction of Joe Levins a prize fight manager who saw him the night he beat Evans with one punch. Of these 16 fights he won 7 via the knockout route.

In 1914 Phinney added to his knockout victims and developed from a ring novice to a nifty boxer. He has met—and beaten—some of the best men in the featherweight division and those who have seen him in his 1915 fights say that before the year is over he will have earned the right to battle Kilbane.

"And when he does," said Levins, "there'll be a new champion."

Towill Case Adjourned.

The trial of Douglas Towill of West Esopus charged with assaulting Melvin Stewart of West Park was again adjourned on Wednesday before Judge McKenzie at Port Ewen to Friday. City Judge William D. Brunier, Jr., appeared for Towill and William Grogan for Mr. Stewart.

Burrage's Birthday Message.

"Keep cheerful and mind your own business." I may say that I have followed that rule myself not unsuccessfully, and in these trying days, when there is so much foolish talk and hasty, violent action, it might be worth the of others just to give it a trial." Burrage.
